Welcome to the third issue of the Fordham Research Newsletter. As Chief Research Officer, I am pleased to report that the 2017-2018 academic year at Fordham is moving forward rapidly on a number of fronts.

We are very excited about the expanding institutional research collaborations among Fordham, Columbia and NYU. In addition to the inaugural Columbia-NYU Fellows Program this past summer, these three universities will be co-organizers for the International Conference on Sustainable Cities on May 1-2, 2018 taking place at our Lincoln Center campus. Other notable articles in this issue include:

- The 2nd Annual Sponsored Research Day at Fordham – April 4th, 2018
- Faculty Research Abroad Program at Sophia University (Japan) – May 21-28, 2018
- Columbia-NYU Research Fellows Forum
- Strategic Research Consortium on Digital Scholarship
- Scholarly Writing Workshop held this past summer
- Grant awards listing over the previous seven months

By keeping the community informed, the Office of Research wants to encourage all researchers at Fordham to discover, develop and deliver their innovative research projects. In particular, we hope to stimulate interdisciplinary and inter-university research as a means of raising Fordham's research profile in academia.

As always, I want to express my sincere appreciation to Provost Stephen Freedman, Dr. Jonathan Crystal, and Dr. Ellen Fahey-Smith for their tremendous support in all the endeavors of this office. Also thanks to Dr. Jim Lewis, for his continued service heading the University Research Council and Dr. Micki McGee, President of the Faculty Senate, for her exceptional support to the Fordham research enterprise. Finally, I applaud all those faculty and staff who make Fordham the special place it is to conduct innovative research in a broad array of disciplines.

Please do not hesitate to reach out to me with your questions and suggestions.

FORDHAM UNIVERSITY

Fordham-Columbia-NYU International Conference on Sustainable Cities – May 1-2, 2018

Fordham will host an International Conference on Sustainable Cities at our Lincoln Center Campus on May 1-2, 2018.

This conference, organized by Fordham University, Columbia University and New York University, will explore solutions to the challenges of developing and maintaining sustainable cities in the United States and worldwide. The panels and plenaries will take place at Fordham University's Lincoln Center campus. Participants from universities, research institutions, government agencies, and the private sectors within and outside of the United States are invited to submit abstracts.

Please make your abstract submission by January 19, 2018. We will inform participants of acceptances by Friday, February 16, 2018.

For more information about the program and how to submit an abstract, please view all the related webpages here. Please continue to monitor this website during the spring semester for the latest information regarding the program and the selected presenters.

The conference organizing committee is chaired by Dr. George Hong, Chief Research Officer at Fordham, and co-chaired by Dr. Rosemary Wakeman, Professor of History and Coordinator of the Fordham Urban Consortium. Nestor Davidson, Professor of Law and coordinator of the Urban Consortium at Fordham, is the chair of the Academic Review Committee. David Heston, Program Coordinator, is coordinating the communication team. More than 25 people from Fordham, Columbia and NYU are working on these three committees devoted to this exceptional collaboration.

Columbia and NYU Research Fellow Forum

In an effort to showcase and recognize the research accomplishments by six Fordham-NYU and Fordham-Columbia Research Fellows, Fordham's Office of Research organized the Columbia and NYU Research Fellows Forum on October 25, 2017 at Fordham's Rose Hill campus.

Dr. Stephen Freedman, Provost of Fordham University, delivered his opening remarks congratulating all fellows on their accomplishments with their research projects during the summer of 2017. Dr. Michael Purdy, Executive Vice President for Research at Columbia University, expressed his great appreciation to the four Fordham-Columbia Fellows who have worked with Columbia research partners to promote these institutional research collaborations. Dr. Paul Horn, Senior Vice Provost for Research at New York University, delivered a written presentation in his absence in which he said, "I would like to congratulate all the participants in this conference and particularly thank my NYU colleagues for the roles they have been playing. Real impact on major urban challenges and sustainable development can only materialize with collective action. The joint research being reported today is a significant step in that direction."

Six Columbia and NYU fellows spoke of their research conducted during the summer of 2017. As planned, they will submit five NSF, NIH and other joint grant proposals in 2018 as PI and Co-PI (total direct budget will be over $1 million). They have published two articles, have submitted two papers, and will submit seven papers for publication. Also, the Fellows have presented one paper and will present ten papers at the national and international conferences in 2018.

Based on the assessment of six fellows' exceptional performance, Fordham Office of Research has decided to continue its Columbia and NYU fellow program in the summer of 2018. Please check its RFP via these OR webpages -- NYU Research Fellows or Columbia Research Fellows.

Faculty Research Abroad Program in Tokyo, Japan

To facilitate the development of research collaborations between Fordham and overseas scholars, Fordham will work with Sophia University in Tokyo, Japan, to implement the inaugural program scheduled for May 21 to May 28, 2018. The major goals of the proposed inaugural program are to 1) organize an international research forum on comparative urban sustainability at Sophia University; 2) conduct research field trips investigating urban sustainability issues in Japan; and 3) develop joint grant proposals to submit to both American and Japanese foundations.

Meanwhile, the program has selected Dr. Asato Ikeda, assistant professor of art history, as the coordinator of the program.

The program has selected 10 faculty members to participate in this innovative research program. Listed below is the information about participants and their research topics.

List of Faculty Participants:

Save the Date April 4th, 2018 -- Sponsored Research Day

On April 4, 2018, five distinguished faculty members will be honored for their achievements in securing externally funded research grants at the 2nd Annual Sponsored Research Day on the Rose Hill Campus. This event will again be held in the O'Hare Special Collections Room on the 4th floor of Walsh Library.

This all-day event combines a means of furthering faculty education with honoring outstanding externally funded research. The tentative agenda is as follows:

- Research Compliance Awareness Fair
- Training Workshop on Export Control
- Outstanding Externally Funded Research Award Ceremony
- Humanities Research Forum

As in last year's event, five distinguished faculty members will be awarded in each of five categories: Sciences, Social Sciences, Humanities, Interdisciplinary Research, and Junior Faculty Research.

To nominate a faculty member or to self-nominate, please monitor our webpages for further details. The deadline for nomination and/or self-nomination is February 1, 2018.

This event is co-sponsored by the University Research Council and the Office of Research. Please mark your calendars.

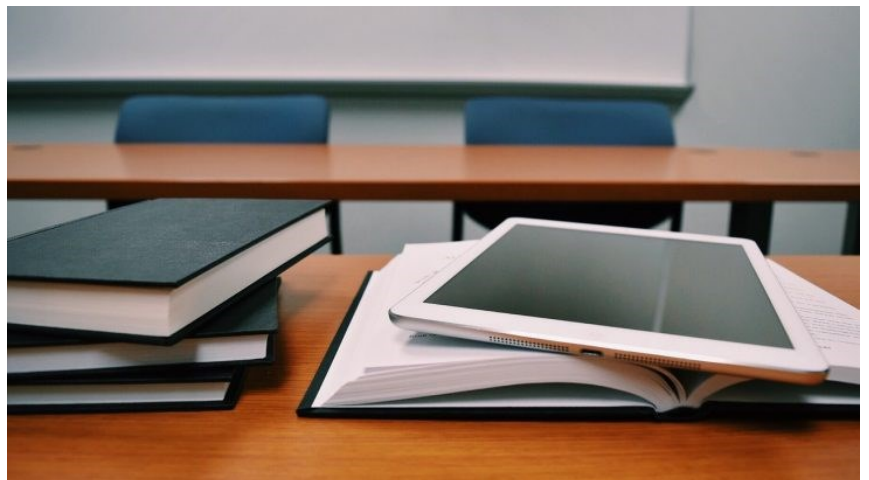

Strategic Research Consortium on Digital Scholarship

Fordham University has established the Strategic Research Consortium on Digital Scholarship. This effort is inspired by the CUSP goal that the University should "Identify and invest in selected areas of current and future strength in research and scholarship" (II.A.1). The University Research Council has recommended unanimously that Digital Scholarship be the top priority as a pilot project for this academic year.

Broadly speaking, digital scholarship encompasses the use of new technologies to advance methods of inquiry and scholarly communication, as well as research on digital technology and media. The focus of Fordham's Digital Scholarship Consortium in its pilot year will be the intersections of digital technology and media with central components of the university's mission — cultivating knowledge and wisdom and advancing social justice.

Dr. Micki McGee (Sociology and Anthropology/American Studies) and Dr. Gregory Donovan (Communications & Media Studies/New Media and Digital Design) have been appointed as the inaugural coordinators of the Digital Scholarship Consortium.

The Fordham University Research Council is currently developing a process to identify additional areas of research that can be promoted through the creation of consortia. We look forward to sharing these methods with you soon.

Scholarly Writing Workshop — Summer 2017

Scholarly-writing trainer Dr. Tara Gray came to Rose Hill on June 7, 2017 to address a gathering of Fordham faculty and graduate students, providing numerous suggestions regarding scholarly writing. The workshop was called, “Publish & Flourish: Become a Prolific Scholar.”

In addition to walking the audience through the various phases of scholarly writing and editing, Dr. Gray asked participants to bring a short example of his or her scholarly writing to receive suggestions from colleagues within small break-out groups.

Evaluations were extremely positive with almost everyone taking away some useful suggestions from Professor Gray’s deep experience and well-presented information.

Professor Gray is an Associate Professor with the New Mexico State University Teaching Academy. She has lectured extensively within and outside of the United States.

Laura Ebert retires from the Office of Sponsored Research

Long-time colleague Laura Ebert was feted on August 10 to celebrate her 29 years of service at Fordham. Laura was an integral part of the Office of Sponsored Program, and her retirement was bitter sweet for her colleagues.

The OSP recently welcomed Mr. Rogel Nuguid as the new Grants and Contracts Administrator taking on the role Laura had. Welcome, Rogel!

Fordham University Research Compliance Council

The Office of Research is pleased to announce the creation of the Fordham University Research Compliance Council (URCC). The URCC will serve as an advisory resource and platform for communication to ensure all areas of research compliance are addressed at the highest standards. To facilitate the important role of the Council, Chief Research Officer has appointed Michele Kuchera as the Director and Kris Wolff as the Co-Director of the URCC. In their roles, Michele and Kris will facilitate the activities of the Council and work closely with members to fulfill the goal of improving overall communication, collaboration, and effectiveness of research compliance services at Fordham.

New and Junior Research Orientation — Fall semester

The Office of Sponsored Programs organized the first New and Junior Faculty Research Orientation on September 20, 2017 at Fordham's Rose Hill campus. It was designed to improve communication and collaboration between the Office and new/junior faculty. Facilitated by Beth Torres, Grants Officer, both Dr. George Hong, Chief Research Officer, and Kris Wolff, Director of the Office of Sponsored Programs, introduced the services, resources and internal funding opportunities in support of faculty research development. Attendees discussed their plans for applying for grants and learned about Fordham's procedures.
