Summer Semester 2016
On Campus and Online Course Offerings

Join us at Fordham University for our 2016 Summer Semester! Fordham’s beautiful Rose Hill campus is an ideal setting where you will experience a vibrant community of learning. All on-campus courses are offered for graduate credit or can be taken for audit. Online course are only open to matriculated students who are taking them for credit.

To apply for a degree program with us, please complete the online application found on the GRE’s homepage, www.fordham.edu/gre. To register as a non-matriculated student, complete the non-matric registration form found on the School’s homepage. You may also use that same form to register as an audit only student.

Looking forward to seeing you this summer!
One-Week Intensive Courses

10164  PCGR-6440  Pastoral Counseling Skills  Dr. Kirk Bingaman
Monday, June 6th- Friday, June 10th; 10:00AM-4:30PM
This course integrates humanistic counseling theory with intragroup practice. Focus on the listening skills of attending, accurate empathy, clarifying and focusing. Use of audio and video. No audit.

10165  PCGR-7420  Death, Dying, & Bereavement  Dr. Mary Beth Werdel
Tuesday, May 31st- Saturday, June 4th; 10:00AM-4:30PM
Focus on integrating theoretical knowledge, ministerial skills and personal experiences in relation to specific topics and issues. Not just how to minister, but how one goes about explaining the meaning of loss, death and grief.

10166  REGR-6188  Religious Education & Human Development  Carl Procario-Foley
Monday, June 13th- Friday, June 17th; 10:00AM-4:30PM
This course examines this question as it explores a religious education perspective to the topic of human growth and development. Students will analyze their own ministry contexts with particular attention to the interface of human development thought and religious education models. The impact of contemporary cultural trends on human development will be explored as they relate to ministerial questions and situations.

10168  SPGR-6746  Franciscan Spirituality  Dr. C. Colt Anderson
Monday, June 6th- Friday, June 10th; 10:00AM-4:30PM
Explores the religious experiences of Francis and Clare from their own writings as well as biographical materials and examines the spiritual teachings that Clare and Francis bequeathed to the religious orders they founded. Special emphasis is placed on the balance they achieved between the contemplative and active lifestyles and on the evangelical values that characterize the Franciscan approach to ministry. Some consideration will be given to representative Franciscan figures who have exemplified the interplay of theology, spirituality and ministry, suggesting outlines of the same for today.

10295  REGR-8123  Imagination: Ministry and Religious Education  Dr. Kieran Scott
10296  Monday, June 6th- Friday, June 10th; 10:00AM-4:30PM
This course explores the link between the imagination, patterns of church ministry and religious educational activity. The role and power of imagination in disclosing new life and re-visioning our work are examined. A central focus is the critical exploration of the images, metaphors and guiding visions undergirding educational and ministerial work in churches and our public life. Our educational and ministerial task is to create a counter-discourse to the dominant discourse of our time. Particular perspectives (the religious, prophetic, feminist, artistic) are employed as resources for enriching imagination, fostering a counter discourse and cultivating imaginative activity with people.
Summer Semester 2016 Course Offerings

Summer A Online: May 23rd to July 8th

10170 PCGR-6380 Theology of Pastoral Counseling & Spiritual Care Donna Shannon
This course addresses theological and spiritual issues in the field of pastoral care and counseling and proposes a theological method for reflecting on these issues.

10172 PCGR-6386 Pastoral Counseling Theory Dr. Cheryl Fisher
Faith and ministry of pastoral counseling. Consideration of religious resources and identity, theories of the counseling process and practical issues of therapeutic relationship, contract, setting, referral, etc.

10174 REGR-6125 Moral Education & Development Dr. Harold Horell
This course explores various aspects of moral education. The topic will be explored from various perspectives: theology, psychology, education, sociology, and the arts. It will aid those involved in religious education and pastoral ministry to make effective use of the arts in their work. Provides a framework for exploring foundational issues of morality and moral development, including how our understandings of the human person, community, and attitude toward the natural environment shape our moral outlook. Emphasis is placed on enabling religious educators and pastoral ministers to make moral formation an integral dimension of education in Christian faith.

10176 RLGR-6030 Christology TBA
This is an introductory Christology course principally from a Roman Catholic perspective. Biblical, historical, and contemporary Christology will be examined.

10178 SPGR-6702 History of Christian Spirituality 1 Chad Thralls
This course will explore a number of the significant figures and themes that characterized the development of Christian Spirituality from its beginnings until the Reformation. Readings will be drawn from classical spiritual texts and relevant secondary literature.

10169 PMGR-6618 Hispanic Family Ministry & Catechesis Valerie Torres
This course will study the lived reality of U.S. Hispanic families. It will challenge participants to critically reflect, analyze and articulate in what ways family ministry and family catechesis is embodied in families and faith communities today; to explore what helps or hinders religious development within families, and the responsibility of church and society to foster growth in faith; to explore experientially based frameworks for ministering with Latino communities; and to nuance their role as religious educators.
Summer Semester 2016 Course Offerings

10800  REGR 6311  Digital Catechesis  Dr. Lope Lesigues
10801  REGR 7311

The Digital Catechesis course provides a new social landscape for imagining faith formation and religious education today. This new landscape integrates Pope Francis’ clarion call for New Evangelization and the worthy potentials of the New Media, to come up with a leadership agenda that offer ways to explore and call into question traditional assumptions and understanding of both the catechetical and the technological. The course’s goal is to lead pastoral leaders to viewing digital catechesis as a vital expression of the truly catechetical in contemporary religious context.

10799  RLGR 6024  Prophets  Dr. Giovanna Czander

A study of Old Testament prophets and prophetic books from a historical, literary, and theological perspective with particular focus on the prophets’ roles and their enduring message.

Summer B Online: June 27th to August 11th

10171  PCGR-6382  Social & Cultural Foundations in Counseling  Dr. Cheryl Fisher

This course will explore the multicultural dimensions of counseling. It will elaborate the social and cultural goals of therapy from this perspective. Various theories, research and practice of counseling will be developed, including the spiritual dimensions of theory.

10173  PCGR-6510  Advanced Adult Development  Carol McGinnis

The purpose of this course will be to help students expand their awareness and their experience of advanced life-span development in the context of pastoral and spiritual care. We will be using Erik Erikson’s psychosocial theory of human development as our starting point, specifically the developmental tasks he assigns to the stages of the life cycle from adolescence to the end of life: identity, intimacy, generativity, and integrity.

10175  RLGR-6010  Old Testament  TBA

The course will introduce students to the academic study of the Old Testament/Hebrew Bible taking a two-pronged approach: a personal and communal engagement with biblical texts and methodological awareness. Students will learn to explore the Old Testament as ‘Scripture’ while also learning to appreciate its role and value as personal and communal document, important for religious understanding and spiritual growth.

10177  RLGR-6032  Church & Society  Fr. Francis Donio

This course reviews how the community established by Jesus Christ, also known as the Church, has been
Summer Semester 2016 Course Offerings
theologically understood over time. We will examine the biblical understanding of the Church in the first part of the course. While the second part focuses on the way that the Church has been understood throughout history, and the final part concentrates on some contemporary ecclesiology and issues facing the Church.
