

FORDHAM GRADUATE SCHOOL OF SOCIAL SERVICE

FACTS 2004-2005

History

The Fordham University Graduate School of Social Service (GSSS) was established in 1916 and is one of the nation's oldest schools of social service. The school is located in heart of New York City at Fordham's Lincoln Center campus and at the Fordham Graduate Center at Marymount College at the Tarrytown campus in New York's Westchester County.

Students

Matriculated students	1437
MSW program	1387
BSW program	50

Field practicum	1070
MSW students	1041
BSW students	29

Race/Ethnic Group of Students

African American	20%
Hispanic	13%
Asian American	3%
Multiple Race/Ethnicity	1.5%
White (non-Hispanic)	62%

Program

Plan of Study

2 year plan students	26%
3 year plan students	39%
4 year plan students	10%
Advanced standing students	18.5%
EESSP students	6.5%

Advanced practice concentrations

Clinical practice	83%
Administration practice	17%
Research practice	<1%

Fields of practice specialization

Children and their families	64%
Substance abuse	16%
Social work and law	12%
Older persons and their families	8%

Faculty and Administration

Full time faculty	48
Part time, adjunct faculty	175
Deans	6

Field Practicum

Field placements	1000
Field instructors	750
MSW field integrative seminars	79

Centers/Institutes

- Beck Institute for Poverty and Religion
- Children FIRST
- Institute for Social Work and Urban Healthcare Policy
- Institute for Women and Girls
- Interdisciplinary Center for Family and Child Advocacy
- National Center for Schools and Communities
- Ravazzin Center for Social Work Research on Aging

Degrees Conferred (2005)

Doctor of Philosophy	5
Master of Social Work	634
Bachelor of Arts in Social Work	19

Alumni

GSSS graduates	11,456
----------------	--------