POST-DOCTORAL TEACHING FELLOWS

The Department of Theology, Fordham University, seeks to appoint at least two post-doctoral teaching fellows for academic year 2018–2019. (Two positions have been authorized to date; additional positions may be authorized by the University.)

Each fellow’s duties will be to teach three undergraduate core curriculum courses each semester; teaching assignments will likely be a combination of sections of the department’s introductory course, “Faith and Critical Reason”, and one or more second-tier “Sacred Texts and Traditions” courses. The ability to offer courses in any of the areas of contemporary Catholic theology and ethics; the sacred texts of the Middle East and comparative courses in premodern Islamic, Jewish, and Christian traditions; premodern Christianity; and the religions of the modern Americas (including but not limited to Latinx religions, indigenous religions, African-American religions, and Afro-Caribbean religions) is especially welcome. Teaching may be at any campus of Fordham University. Required is an earned doctorate conferred or to be conferred between January 1, 2015, and September 1, 2018. Competitive compensation and benefits.

A complete application consists of a personal letter of application, CV, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and the names of two references. Applications must be received by 5:00 p.m. on Friday, April 6, 2018, for full consideration. Please email application materials to hornbeck@fordham.edu.

Please address any questions to Patrick Hornbeck, Chair, Department of Theology, at hornbeck@fordham.edu. Late or incomplete applications will not be considered.

Fordham University is an independent, Catholic University in the Jesuit tradition that welcomes applications from men and women of all backgrounds. Fordham University is committed to excellence through diversity and welcomes candidates of all backgrounds; it is an equal opportunity employer.
