Career Advisors Subcommittee

The mission of the AAC Career Advisors Subcommittee is to foster a supportive and sharing environment where each AAC member can find the type of brainstorming and guidance that one may need at various stages of one's career. For example, AAC members may be able to offer advice on a macro level on applying effective strategies for advancement how advance within a firm, or corporate legal department, government or non-profit organization, transitioning from a firm to in-house, or preparing to move to a non-legal role. Members of the AAC may also be available for advice on day-to-day career specific matters, like working with challenging managers or direct reports, negotiating compensation, honing time management skills, diversifying your skill sets within the firm environment, managing others, or inquiring on how to bring your authentic self to the workplace. There is a wealth of knowledge within the AAC community so no AAC member should have to "go it alone," because together we can make a difference and realize our true potential.
