Troy A. Paredes
Founder
Paredes Strategies LLC

From 2008 until 2013, Paredes was a Commissioner of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, having been appointed by President George W. Bush and confirmed by the Senate. At the SEC, Paredes was a strong advocate for small business, for facilitating capital formation, for solving the information overload problem of securities law, and for cost-benefit analysis.

Since leaving government, Paredes has had an active consulting practice, advising a wide-range of entities, including banks, broker-dealers, investment advisors, hedge funds, private equity funds, mutual funds, and exchanges, as well as non-financial services firms. His consulting focuses on financial regulation, compliance, risk management, governance, and regulatory strategy and change management. Paredes also serves as an expert witness and advisor in regulatory enforcement investigations and in private litigation involving securities law and corporate law. And he brings his academic, government, and private sector experience to bear as an independent compliance consultant/corporate monitor.

Before becoming an SEC Commissioner, Paredes was a professor of law at Washington University in St. Louis and a professor of business (by courtesy) at Washington University’s Olin Business School. Currently, he is a Distinguished Scholar in Residence at NYU School of Law and a Lecturer on Law at Harvard Law School. Previously, he was the Distinguished Policy Fellow and Lecturer at the University of Pennsylvania Law School. Paredes is the author of numerous academic articles and is co-author (beginning with the 4th edition) of a multi-volume securities regulation treatise with Louis Loss and Joel Seligman.

Paredes holds a bachelor’s degree in economics from the University of California, Berkeley and earned his J.D. from Yale Law School.
