COURSE OUTLINE:

The course is specifically designed for students engaged in non-profit or business related internships (or those who are presently working) and includes theoretical information describing the management and sociology of complex organizations. Many organizational issues discussed in class are career-life related, issues on which students make comparisons through their observations in the organizational settings of which they work. Recommended readings include: New Work Habits For A Radically Changing World by Price Pritchett, The 7 Habits of Highly Effective People by Stephen R. Covey, Working with Emotional Intelligence by Daniel Goleman, Theory Z by William G. Ouchi, On Becoming a Leader by Warren Bennis, Managing in a Time of Great Change by Peter Drucker, The Situational Leader by Dr. Paul Hersey, and My Job My Self by Al Gini.

This four credit course/seminar combines selected and required readings; guest speaker presentations with representatives from both the private and public sectors; the showing of related films and videos (instructional resources); panel discussions and debates; and interactive team building experiences, student oral presentations and group projects.

Focusing particularly on the above mentioned and related issues, other learning objectives of this course will include enhancing a student’s ability to understand, prepare for and succeed in the “world of work” from a practical and theoretical standpoint.

ASSIGNMENT #1

Please develop a short paper (approximately five pages in length) discussing the concepts listed below in relation to your placement. These concepts/topics have been discussed in class or introduced in your required readings.

- Interest, duties and objectives (How these duties relate to the overall goals of the organization).
- Function/goal of organization
- Bureaucratic ideology/glorify myth
Class Discussion

In a recent class, the topic of job satisfaction was discussed in relation to twenty-six varying factors, including how these factors affect occupational stress. In drawing from experience as an intern, please prepare a brief (5 minute) oral discussion with at least 10 of these factors and how they relate to your personal employment needs in regard to achieving job satisfaction.

Final Paper

This 10 page paper should cover 3 basic topics:

1. Leadership – what you’ve learned about leadership from class discussions, readings, guest speakers, exercises, research (superstar leaders in your field), observations at your internship, etc. Please pay specific attention to the leadership style your supervisor displays in comparison to Mr. Ernest Shackelton.

2. Yourself – what you learned about yourself in relation to occupational wellness, personality/behavior, career decision making, job satisfaction, team work, stress management, emotional intelligence, conflict resolution, etc. Exercises and handouts may be helpful in writing this section. Please focus on creating your personal brand; what will make you compelling to a prospective recruiter.

3. Assessment- please evaluate your entire internship (or work if you are employed) experience including preliminary contact with Career Services, your field placement, the academic classroom experience, guest speakers, required readings, handouts, individual/group exercises, etc.
Bonus Credit

This half-a-page blog post, which will be used to promote the program to future participants, could include, but is not limited to:

1. A brief interview with your supervisor to uncover what is most valued in an intern/employee, tips for future interns/employees, “what to do/what not to do,” etc.

2. A brief interview with a fellow intern/colleague to discuss valuable lessons learned while working in a professional setting, e.g. networking, interviewing, on the job, etc.

3. A brief interview with a fellow classmate to learn about their internship/work, as well as valuable lessons learned/tips for future interns/those entering the workplace
