

FORDHAM Arts and Sciences Core Curriculum (for B.A. and B.S. degrees)

- All FCLC students complete the following sequences of courses during their four years.
- The arrows indicate courses that are to be taken in sequence. These sequences do not have prescribed semesters. Usually, most students will work to complete most of the core requirements listed in the first column (far left) during their first two years and those listed in the last column (far right) are generally done in a student's final year of college.
- Eloquentia Perfecta I is usually fulfilled by taking one core liberal arts course with this EP I designation during the student's first semester of first year.
- Eloquentia Perfecta II is fulfilled by taking one of the Texts and Contexts courses listed among the English department offerings.
- Eloquentia Perfecta III is fulfilled by taking an advanced course with the EP III designation (usually in junior year).
- Eloquentia Perfecta IV is fulfilled by taking a Values Seminar in senior year.
- In the course of the four years, students also take one course with the Globalism designation and one designated as Pluralism (American Pluralism).

All B.A. students, with the exception of natural science majors, must fulfill the language sequence to the Language and Literature (or exit level) course, numbered 2001. Students working toward a B.S. in psychology must also fulfill the language sequence, unless they are also fulfilling the pre-med track.

*Some students may be placed in Composition I before taking Composition II.
